

Director Briefings

Leading the way forward

Increasingly directors and senior management are being challenged to demonstrate their commitment and their organisation's capability to control and mitigate risk. LINK provides a range of support from seminars and workshops to stakeholder analysis and issues management specifically designed to assist corporate and business teams.

It is critical to the success of any corporate programme that it is designed to deliver a focused and well-communicated message, providing a clear definition of the problem(s) and issue(s) the organisation is facing and an explanation of the consequences and the strategic options/opportunities that are available.

The processes and techniques associated with risk and safety management are not stand alone components. They are systems that will provide cost effective solutions and governance when used effectively and integrated into a business culture.

Interactive sessions for small groups or individuals can be designed to explore the vulnerabilities and exposures that can arise from a failure to establish effective systems within their organisation.

Our work fits neatly into the area of governance with programmes which integrate risk and issues management with briefings and workshops.
