

IOSH Working Safely

Where competence comes first

For a safe system of work to be in place, a company needs proficient people who have been trained to work safely and recognise their responsibilities.

Our one day IOSH approved course introduces the broad principles of safe working. It is less intensive than the Managing Safely course and is designed to raise awareness of safety issues for all employees. Particularly beneficial for first line supervisors and newly appointed safety representatives, the course covers:

- Legislation
- Identifying hazards
- Risk assessment
- Consultation

Course elements can be tailored to suit your systems and procedures by taking examples and discussion points from your day to day business activities. The course can be delivered at your site or at our training centre in Derby.

Upon successful completion of the course and a short test, delegates are awarded an IOSH certificate.
